NANCY WARD DOCK 1947 - 2015

One notable trip to Kauai was for the marriage of Nora to Sean Allen. She also toured in Spain, Bulgaria, Italy, Holland, and recently Paris. Her most enjoyable adventure took place in 2001, when she joined Nora for a three-week volunteer program in Ghana. Her totem animal is the turtle.

Frequent vacations in Bar Harbor, Maine were another favorite, which somehow led to building a vacation cottage on Swans Island. Here Nancy found everything she loved about coastal Maine distilled and concentrated in her "special place". From 2003 to 2014, Nancy spent many enjoyable summer months on Swans Island photographing the beauty and calm of a coastal island.

In 2004 our first Grandchild, Amalia Frances Allen, was born in Brattleboro, Vermont. Two years later, our second grandchild, Cole Jackson Allen, was born. Prior to Cole's birth, Nora, Sean, and Amalia had moved to Austin, TX. In May 2006, Nancy and Steve decided to leave Swarthmore and move to Austin to enjoy Nora, Sean, and the grandchildren.

In Austin, Nancy lived close to Nora and the grandkids, which let her actively participate in their growing up. Of course, she took thousands of photos and videos documenting their every milestone and achievement. In 2012, Nancy accompanied the Allen family to Seoul, Korea. There our newest grandchild, YeHoon Yoon, joined the family.

In November 2012 Nancy underwent surgery for Ovarian Cancer. She spent the next two and a half years fighting her cancer with black humor, dignity, and grace. On February 23, 2015 she lost that battle at home surrounded in love by her family.

She is remembered for her grace, kindness, and sense of style.

REMEMBERING

Nancy Ward Dock

January 12, 1947 to February 23, 2015

Nancy Ward was born in Philadelphia and grew up in the leafy suburb of North Hills. She lived there with her father James, a commercial artist, her mother Florence, and her Nana, Florence's mother Margaret Nichols. Nana was a native of Manchester England and for the rest of her life, Nancy loved hearing the Manchester accent. The North Hills home dated to Colonial times and those years were very important to Nancy.

Nancy, her sister Margaret and brother Jim walked to school; rode their bikes to playgrounds and friends houses; and even across the train tracks to the store and movie theatre. When she was a teenager, the family moved to Philadelphia. Nancy graduated from Philadelphia's selective Girls High School in 1964.

In 1967 while attending and working at the Community College of Philadelphia she met and fell in love with Stephen Dock. They were married on June 14, 1969 and lived in the Center City area of Philadelphia for several years.

Nancy was an active participant in the cultural and political activities of the '60's and '70's. She marched, protested, and organized against the Vietnam War, for civil rights, for women's rights, and against nuclear weapons.

In August 1975, Nora Ellen Dock was born. Two years later, Christopher Ward Dock was born almost during a Labor Day party! The family moved from Philadelphia to Rose Valley, then Rutledge and finally Swarthmore, PA.

Nancy's devotion to raising her children included very active participation in school committees, Nursing Mothers, and Girl Scouts. Her role with the Nursing Mothers organization increased from Counselor to Regional Coordinator for Delaware County. She also led a Girl Scouts troop for several years.

As the children grew more independent, Nancy returned to college to earn a degree in Education and teacher certification from West Chester

In 1997 Nancy's niece, Remi Demarest came to live with us and enriched our family life with her humor and charm.

Nancy next worked as a research assistant at the Franklin Mint. There she used her talents to research, validate, and document various persons and items that might become products for the Mint. She enjoyed the research aspects of this work so much that she enrolled in an Information Sciences program at Drexel University. After she completed her Masters Degree there, she began working as a part-time Reference Librarian at the Tredyffrin Township Library in Chester County. She greatly enjoyed sharing her access to knowledge with people of all backgrounds.

Nancy's inheritance from her father included artistic talent and a keen aesthetic sense. In fact, his family included many musicians and artists and her grandfather was a noted sculptor. While shy about her drawing talents, Nancy pursued photography with passion. Her photographic eye was remarkable and several of her photographs have been used in magazines, publicity brochures, and on websites. Some have received awards or been selected for inclusion in commercial Stock Photography libraries.

Nancy's aesthetic sensibility also found outlets in frequent attendance at the Philadelphia Orchestra, Pennsylvania Ballet, and Opera Philadelphia. Her favorite opera is Madame Butterfly.

Nancy embraced technology and was an early and avid proponent of E-Reading. She owned and used early Palm devices through to the latest Kindle and iPad's.

Nancy also enjoyed travel. She vacationed in California, Hawaii, Maine, and the Caribbean Islands several times.

Remembering Nancy Ward Dock

Nancy Ward was born in Philadelphia and grew up in the leafy suburb of North Hills. There she lived with her father, James who was a commercial artist, her mother Florence and her Nana, Florence's mother Margaret Nichols who was a native of Manchester England. Throughout her life, Nancy was partial to the Manchester accent. The North Hills home dated to Colonial times and those years were very important to Nancy.

Nancy, her sister Margaret and brother Jim walked to school, rode their bikes to playgrounds and friends houses and even across the train tracks to the store and movie theatre. When she was a teenager, the family moved to Philadelphia. Nancy graduated from Philadelphia's selective Girls High School in 1964.

In 1967 while attending and working at the Community College of Philadelphia she met and fell in love with Stephen Dock. They were married on June 14, 1969 and lived in the Center City area of Philadelphia for several years.

Nancy was an active participant in the cultural and political activities of the '60's and '70's. She marched, protested and organized against the Vietnam War, for civil and women's rights, and against nuclear weapons.

In August 1975, Nora Ellen Dock was born. Two years later, Christopher Ward Dock was born shortly after a Labor Day party! The family moved from Philadelphia to Rose Valley, then Rutledge and finally Swarthmore, PA.

Nancy's devotion to raising her children included very active participation in school committees, Nursing Mothers and Girl Scouts. Her work with the Nursing Mothers organization grew from Counselor to regional coordinator for Delaware County. Her work with the Girl scouts included leading a troop for several years.

As the children grew more independent, Nancy returned to college to earn a degree in education and teacher certification from West Chester University. She worked part time as a substitute teacher throughout Delaware County schools and then as a full time social studies teacher at The School of the Holy Child.

In 1997 Nancy's niece, Remi Demarest came to live with us and enriched the family life with her humor and charm.

Nancy next worked as a research assistant at the Franklin Mint. There she used her talents to research, validate and document various persons and items that might become products for the Mint. She enjoyed the research aspects of this work so much that she enrolled in an Information Sciences program at Drexel University. After she completed her Masters Degree there, she began working as a part-time Reference Librarian at the Tredyffrin Township Library in Chester County. There she enjoyed sharing her access to knowledge with people of all ages and incomes.

Nancy's inheritance from her father included artistic talent and a keen aesthetic sense. (His family included many musicians and artists and her grandfather was a noted sculptor.) While shy about her drawing talents, Nancy pursued photography with passion. Her 'photographic eye' was remarkable and several of her photographs have been used in magazines, publicity brochures and on websites. Some have received awards or been selected for inclusion in commercial Stock Photography libraries.

Nancy's aesthetic sensibility also found outlets in frequent attendance at the Philadelphia Orchestra, Pennsylvania Ballet and Opera Philadelphia. Her favorite opera is Madame Butterfly.

Nancy embraced technology and was an early and avid proponent of E-Reading. She owned and used early Palm devices through the latest Kindle and iPad's.

Nancy also enjoyed travel. She vacationed in California, Hawaii, Maine and the Caribbean islands several times. (One notable trip to Kauai was for the marriage of Nora to Sean Allen.) She also toured Spain, Bulgaria, Italy, Holland and recently Paris. Her most enjoyable adventure took place in 2001, when she joined Nora for a three-week volunteer program in Ghana.

Frequent vacations in Bar Harbor, Maine were another favorite, which somehow led to building a vacation 'cottage' on Swans Island. There Nancy found everything she loved about coastal Maine distilled and concentrated in her "special place". From 2003 to 2014, Nancy spent many enjoyable months on Swans Island photographing the beauty and calm of a coastal island.

In 2004 her first Grandchild, Amalia Frances Allen was born in Brattleboro Vermont. Two years later, our second grandchild Cole Jackson Allen was born. Prior to Cole's birth, Nora, Sean and Amalia had moved to Austin, TX. In May 2006, Nancy and Steve decided to leave Swarthmore and move to Austin to enjoy Nora, Sean and the grandchildren.

In Austin, Nancy lived close by to Nora and the grandkids, which let her actively, participate in their growing up. Of course, she took thousands of photos and videos documenting their every milestone and achievement. In 2012, Nancy accompanied the Allen family to Seoul, Korea. There the newest grandchild, YeHoon Yoon joined the family.

In November 2012 Nancy underwent surgery for Ovarian Cancer. She spent the next two and a half years fighting her cancer with black humor, dignity and grace. On February 23, 2015 she lost that battle at home surrounded by her family.

She is remembered for her grace, kindness and sense of style.

Obituary for Nancy Ward Dock

Nancy Ward Dock died at her home in Austin Texas surrounded by her family on February 23, 2015. A long time resident of Swarthmore, PA and summer resident of Swans Island, Maine, Nancy is survived by her husband Stephen Dock, children Nora Dock, Christopher Dock, and Remi Demarest; son-in-law Sean Allen; brother James Ward; sister-in-law Amelia Ingram and grandchildren Amalia, Cole and YeHoon Allen.

Nancy will be loved and remembered for her grace and kindness. She was a devoted wife and mother who expressed her artistic talents through photography and her elegant sense of style. Nancy was a life-long learner who generously shared her wisdom with all who knew her. Her role as a reference librarian brought her great professional success and personal rewards. She enjoyed helping diverse populations access essential knowledge through the gift of the written word.

We ask that you honor Nancy's warmth, wit and compassionate spirit by providing assistance to your local homeless population.

There will be a memorial service in celebration of Nancy's life on Saturday, March 28, 2015 at Friends Meeting of Austin.